How do you transform your school level data into conversations that promote informed instructional decisions?

When your team reviews data such as standardized assessment results, curriculum based assessment results, or even demographic data... what happens?

- Are you left with:
- more questions than answers?
  - realizations that are difficult to articulate?
  - differing opinions?
  - the feeling that no one is asking the right questions?

If you answered "yes" to one or more of the above statements, then, the Spring Institute is for you! Administrators, teachers, reading specialists, and instructional coaches will benefit from this day. Together we will learn to conduct collaborative conversations while reflecting on the diagnostic evidence provided by our students.

Cathy Toll, author and consultant will provide participants with:

- tools to empower leaders at all levels,
- a protocol to guide inquiry,
- support for your PA district's RTII implementation, and
- job-embedded professional development methods to encourage reflective thought and immediate action.
